Draft for attorney review. Not legal advice.

Office Participation Agreement

Between [COMPANY NAME: Desk Drop LLC] ("we", the "Company") and the office named below ("you"). Version 0.8.

In short: free products, nothing to pay, no penalties, nothing asked about your employees, and either side can stop on a week's notice.

Office (your company's legal name), address, floor	[OFFICE LEGAL NAME] · [OFFICE ADDRESS], [FLOOR OR SUITE]
Pantry owner (signs below)	[NAME], [TITLE] · [PHONE] · [EMAIL]
Receiving window and delivery point	[DAYS AND HOURS] · [WALK-UP / FRONT DESK / DOCK / OTHER]
Building needs our insurance certificate?	[YES / NO / NOT SURE]
First drop planned for	Week of [DROP DATE: Tue 2027-01-12]; we confirm by email

1. What we bring. Products from vetted emerging snack and drink brands, free, roughly monthly as available. Each drop comes on a Tuesday or Wednesday morning in your receiving window, with a display card. After each drop we send you a summary of your team's feedback. We add to your pantry; we don't replace your supplier.

2. You choose. You pick the categories you want. You may veto any brand, category or allergen at any time, and we check each product's label against your vetoes before offering it. For your first three drops, nothing comes unless you reply yes. After that, we email you each brand at least five business days ahead, and it comes unless you say no.

3. What you do for each drop. Put it on the shelf at eye level, card in front, within one business day of delivery. Send us one photo of it there the day you place it, and one more on day 3 or day 5. Post the survey link once in Slack or by email. Help us reach five or more survey responses (no one has to answer). Give us a ten-minute debrief after the drop. Tell us your usual Tuesday headcount.

4. Product standard. Only individually packaged, sealed, shelf-stable products, commercially labeled with ingredients and allergens. Never alcohol, cannabis, CBD or THC, dietary supplements, refrigerated or perishable products, or products with health claims. We never open a package or change its label, and every display card repeats the product's allergen statement. Each brand must show us product liability insurance of at least $1 million before it ships, and we will carry general liability insurance before your first drop. If your building requires it, we will name its owner and managing agent as additional insureds on that insurance and send it a certificate before our first delivery.

5. Your team. Employees take products only if they want to, and we will not hold you responsible for how anyone uses them. If anyone reports a problem with a product, tell us: we remove it from your pantry right away and tell the brand the same day. If a brand recalls a product, we tell you that day and collect what is left. We collect no personal data about your employees, except an email address an employee chooses to give for a brand's newsletter. Otherwise the survey is anonymous.

6. Photos and your name. We photograph only the shelf and display (never people, screens or whiteboards). We may share them with brands and use them in our own materials without anything that identifies your office. We give a brand your company name and address only after it signs with us, only to run its campaign. Our agreement with the brand requires it to keep them confidential and not to approach you for direct placements for six months. Anywhere else, we name you only if you tick a box here: ☐ on our founding roster, which brands see ☐ publicly, such as our website.

7. No money, no penalties. Neither side pays the other anything. You will never owe us money or damages under this agreement. If something here stops working for you, tell us; either of us may simply end participation.

8. Term and leaving. This runs for 12 months from signing and renews each year. Either of us may end it at any time with seven days' notice by email. Leftover product at the end of a drop: we collect it or leave it with you to keep, as the brand chooses, and we tell you which before the drop. You never store anything for us beyond the drop.

9. New company. If the Company's New York registration is not complete when this is signed, [FOUNDER NAME] signs for it. Once it is registered, the Company takes over this agreement in [FOUNDER NAME]'s place, and you agree to that now. We will email you when it happens. Nothing else changes for you.

10. The whole agreement. This page and your intake form (preferences, vetoes, headcount) are the whole agreement. Changes need an email from each side. New York law applies. Electronic signatures count, including an email reply saying "I agree". The person signing runs this office's pantry and can say yes to this for the office.

For the office	For the Company
Signature: _____ Date: _____	Signature: _____ Date: _____
[NAME], [TITLE], for [OFFICE LEGAL NAME]	[FOUNDER NAME], for the Company · [PHONE] · [EMAIL]